

INSTITUTE OF GEORESOURCES AND CLIMATE STUDIES,
ONGC CENTRE OF ADVANCED STUDIES
Admission Guidelines 2017

4 Program Details

4.1 M.Sc. in Applied Geology (With specialization in Petroleum Geosciences)

4.1.1 Eligibility

Candidates who have passed the three year B.Sc. examination of the University of Lucknow or any other equivalent examination of other universities (considered as equivalent by the University of Lucknow) with an aggregate of at least 55% marks or equivalent CGPA with any TWO of the following subjects: (a) Geology, (b) Physics, (c) Mathematics (d) Life Sciences (Zoology and/ or Botany) and (e) Chemistry at the U.G. level, will be considered eligible for admission. Preference will be given to candidates who have studied Geology at the U. G. Level.

4.1.2 Admission Process

Admission to the Four Semester M.Sc. Programme in Applied Geology (With specialization in Petroleum Geosciences), for the eligible candidates, will be based on their past academic record and performance in the Interview . The M.Sc. Programme in Applied Geology shall be imparted to the selected students for two academic sessions consisting of four semesters, and evaluated as stated below. Besides the regular Course they shall also have to opt for a compulsory Elective subject from the Faculty of Science.

4.1.3 Duration

Four semester

4.1.4 Number of Seats

25

4.1.5 Fees

Rs. 30000.00 per Semester

4.1.6 Constant Evaluation

4.1.6.1

Candidates will be examined through Continuous Internal Assessment and evaluated at the end of each semester in the different courses of Theory, Practical, Field Work and Project work. The papers will be set in English, and the students will be required to answer the questions in English only. Students are required to have a minimum of 75% attendance to be eligible to appear in the examination. The attendance in the Fieldwork/ Industrial Visit/ Industrial Training will also be compulsory for all the students, after which the students will be required to submit a detailed report to the concerned teacher(s) for evaluation.

4.1.6.2

A number of National and International, Private and Public Sector Organisations (such as ONGC; ACL, Norway; BMRC, Dubai) have already provided their consent to support the above programmes.

INSTITUTE OF GEORESOURCES AND CLIMATE STUDIES,
ONGC CENTRE OF ADVANCED STUDIES
Admission Guidelines 2017

4.2 P.G. Diploma in Exploration, Resources and Mining Technology

4.2.1 Eligibility

Candidates who have passed the M.Sc. in Geology examination of the University of Lucknow or any other equivalent examination of other universities (considered as equivalent by the University of Lucknow) with an aggregate of at least 55% marks or equivalent CGPA will be considered eligible for admission.

4.2.2 Admission Process

Admission to the Two Semester P.G. Diploma in Exploration, Resources and Mining Technology programme for the eligible candidates, will be based on their past academic record and performance in the Interview.

4.2.3 Duration

Two semester

4.2.4 Number of Seats

10

4.2.5 Fees

Rs. 25000.00 per Semester

4.2.6 Constant Evaluation

4.2.6.1

Candidates will be examined through Continuous Internal Assessment and evaluated at the end of each semester in the different courses of Theory, Practical, Field Work and Project work. The papers will be set in English, and the students will be required to answer the questions in English only. Students are required to have a minimum of 75% attendance to be eligible to appear in the examination. The attendance in the Fieldwork/ Industrial Visit/ Industrial Training will also be compulsory for all the students, after which the students will be required to submit a detailed report to the concerned teacher(s) for evaluation.

4.2.6.2

A number of National and International, Private and Public Sector Organisations (such as ONGC; ACL, Norway; BMRC, Dubai) have already provided their consent to support the above programmes.